

For this assignment, I created a new cart page HTML and added some interaction into the detail page. During this process, I spent a large amount of time on JavaScript. I basically realized my design intention for the detail page. Users can register different sections, drop them or switch between different sections. One problem is how to use the variable from another .js file. For example, if I have declared an array selected in main.js, I want to use the array in my cart.js to add the courses into the table. How to make it possible?
